

Related Books

Featured Books

When Clay Sings

by Byrd Baylor

Baylor uses prose-poetry to tell the story behind the broken clay pots scattered across the southwestern hillsides.

Topic: Native American History

Age Group: Early Elementary (K-3)

Book Type: Fiction

Award: Caldecott Medal

Publisher: Aladdin, 1972, New York, NY

Pueblo Storyteller

by Diane Hoyt-Goldsmith

Though the narrative of a young Cochiti Pueblo girl, readers learn traditions of the Native American culture including how pottery, instruments and food are created, as well as some traditional folklore.

Topic: Native American History

Age Groups: Early Elementary (K-3), Late Elementary (4-6)

Book Type: Fiction

Publisher: Holiday House, 1991, New York, NY

Pueblo Girls: Growing Up in Two Worlds

by Marcia Keegan

Two sisters are raised between different worlds and they must balance between two languages and religions.

Topics: Native American History, 20th-Century History, Women's History

Age Group: Late Elementary (4-6)

Book Type: Nonfiction

Publisher: Treasure Chest Books, 1999, Tucson, AZ

The Pueblos

by Suzanne Powell

A collection of Iroquois creation tales.

Topic: Native American History

Age Groups: Late Elementary (4-6), Middle School

Book Type: Fiction

Publisher: Clear Light Publishers, 1997, Santa Fe, NM