

EDITORIAL

Omaha School Segregation

School segregation is out in the South. When will Omaha stop segregating school teachers?

The few Negro teachers in Omaha teach in schools that have predominantly Negro students. The one Negro school principal is principal of a school that has almost all Negro students. No Negro teachers in any high school in the entire city.

Several months ago the Omaha Star published a long list of highly qualified Omaha Negro college graduates who had to go to other cities to teach because the Omaha school system would not hire them because of their color.

This year it is reliably estimated the public school system will need from 30 to 40 new teachers, many of these new teachers will teach in Omaha's public high schools.

How long are we going to permit segregation of school teachers in Omaha?

This year would not be too early to end it. The superintendent of schools in Columbus, Ohio is considering the use of Negro teachers in the high schools there. What about the Supt. of schools in Omaha, Nebraska?

Supreme Court Clears Docket Of NAACP Segregation Cases

New York—The docket of NAACP segregation cases before the United States Supreme Court has been cleared. Thurgood Marshall, the Association's special counsel, declared this week following the Court's actions in six cases involving educational institutions, a public housing project and public recreational facilities.

"While by its actions on May 24 in these cases," Mr. Marshall said, "the Supreme Court postpones specific extension of the May 17 ruling to areas other than

THE

Dedicated to the

VOLUME 14--No. 55

Bus Company Negro Drivers

By Hank Moore

Wichita, Kansas—It didn't take a U. S. Supreme Court decision to force the (Kable) J. E. Ebinger, general manager of the Wichita Transportation Corp., to the statement that the company could use Negro bus drivers. He said he has been considering the possibility for some time.

Mr. Ebinger made the revelation during a conference with a reporter from the Wichita Observer-News, a day before the news of the United States Supreme Court decision on this segregation in public transportation reached the general public.

The general manager said he will be doing "nothing" long. He said he had talked Allan H. Hutcherson, for associated with the Obert in an effort to secure a James Hutcherson was only to come up with one, Ebinger said.

In breaking the long tradition, the general manager said that it will take competent capable of handling any situation.

He said he could use men similar to the Negro garage mechanics now employed by the transportation corporation.

"We want dependable

Omaha School Segregation

School segregation is out in the South. When will Omaha stop segregating school teachers?

The few Negro teachers in Omaha teach in schools that have predominantly Negro students. The one Negro school principal is principal of a school that has almost all Negro students. No Negro teachers in any high school in the entire city.

Several months ago the Omaha Star published a long list of highly qualified Omaha Negro college graduates who had to go to other cities to teach because the Omaha school system would not hire them because of their color.

This year it is reliably estimated the public school system will need from 30 to 40 new teachers, many of these new teachers will teach in Omaha's public high schools.

How long are we going to permit segregation of school teachers in Omaha?

This year would not be too early to end it. The superintendent of schools in Columbus, Ohio is considering the use of Negro teachers in the high schools there. What about the Supt. of schools in Omaha, Nebraska?