National Museum of American History

Job Opportunity Public Programs Facilitator (Part-Time)

Looking for a summer job in DC? Are you enthusiastic about American history? Do you enjoy sharing your knowledge with people of all ages? The Smithsonian's National Museum of American History is looking for personable, responsible people like you to join our team of education facilitators!

The Museum is seeking energetic, curious individuals who will engage visitors in conversations about American history and spark personal connections to the past. Facilitators will play a key role in launching American Experiments, five new hands-on experience stations that will inspire visitors to discuss and actively engage in American civic life. Facilitators will also welcome young children and their adult companions in Wegmans Wonderplace, assist with the Museum's History Alive! theater programs, and manage large group experiences. The Museum provides training in conversational facilitation and specific topics in American history.

The best qualified applicants will have experience working in an educational space with a variety of personalities, learning styles, and age groups. They will be committed to customer service, work cooperatively, and approach new duties with grit and flexibility.

This is a Trust (non-federal) position at IS-4, Step 1. The hourly rate is $15.54; an average day is 7-7.5 hours. Candidates must be available to work 2-4 days per week including weekends and holidays. This position is temporary for the summer with possible extension. Paid training will begin on approximately May 30, 2017, contingent on passing a mandatory background check.

To apply, please email Katharine Mead, meadka@si.edu, by March 29, 2017. Please place "Facilitator" in the subject line and include a cover letter, your resume, and your general availability for June, July, and August 2017.

The Smithsonian Institution is an Equal Opportunity Employer. Women, minorities, people with disabilities, and candidates of all backgrounds are encouraged to apply. We seek a workforce that reflects the diversity of America.
